

enJerneering UI Builder

Pierson, Jake, Jadi, Payton

Something Interesting...

Jake went to Japan!

Project Overview

- Drag and drop website builder aimed at freelancers

New Features

Create a project

Users give basic website information and a basic project is created.

Projects appear in workspace

All projects created by users appear in a workspace.

Delete a Project

Projects can be deleted from the workspace.

Created projects are stored in database

All changes are saved to the now implemented database.

Client and Mentor Feedback

- Both - Always, always, always ask for help
- Client - This is great stuff / the User file was professional and the Deployment documentation will be extremely helpful.
- Mentor - “You guys are really moving and I feel like if you keep to the process there’s nothing to worry about.”

Retrospection

- Team member thoughts
- Sacrifices for functionality
- Lessons learned for iteration 2

Second Iteration Features

The screenshot displays a Jira board for 'Iteration 2'. The top navigation bar includes a search icon, the board title, and tabs for 'Backlog', 'Team capacity', 'Current iteration', 'Roadmap', 'My items', and 'New view'. Below the navigation bar is a filter input field labeled 'Filter by keyword or by field'. The board is organized into three columns: 'Todo' (5 items, Estimate: 0), 'In Progress' (0 items, Estimate: 0), and 'Done' (0 items, Estimate: 0). Each column has a description: 'This item hasn't been started' for 'Todo', 'This is actively being worked on' for 'In Progress', and 'This has been completed' for 'Done'. The 'Todo' column contains five draft items, each with a description: 'Users can edit previously saved projects.', 'Users can save projects.', 'Users can access and edit saved projects through the workspace.', 'Ensure that websites can only be created if all necessary information is included.', and 'Display an error if necessary website information is not given.'.
